About the Program

Through two complementary courses offered in French, you will be immersed not only in the French language but in the contemporary culture and the French art. Through museum visits, French cafés, Monet’s garden, as well as guest-lectures, you will have an in-depth, on-site opportunity for intellectual growth.

The course FRE 3324 French in the City: Interaction and Variation invites you to observe the use of the language in its social context, with Paris as your laboratory. Each lecture will be complemented by visits of unique collections, fieldwork experiments, and hands-on activities. The second course FRE 4956 (taught by the Host Institution in Paris) will focus on French Art and Culture. This course has been designed to use the cultural resources of the City of Lights. The two courses could count for the minor or major in French and Francophone Studies.

The group will enjoy cultural experiences such as shopping together, celebrating Bastille Day, and tasting French food that will provide you with lasting memories and new friendships.
